

Your customers love their leisure time with wildlife.

Link your product to their pleasure when they walk along the beach or mountain stream and see their favorite animals. They discover an egret hunting in a pink sunset, and your product makes it even better. But you need to give them that wildlife picture first. And you want to find the right picture fast, from a reliable source you like dealing with.

I have what you need. I'm Mark Bohrer (rhymes with roar). I give you images of animals watching, fighting and playing in great light. You deal with me, a real person. And you'll be using pictures you won't see anywhere else.

Who is Mark Bohrer?

Mark's been photographing wildlife and nature in the western United States for several years. He's photographed many species, from young water birds begging from their parents long after they're able to feed themselves, to male Belding's ground squirrels busily eating to put on weight before they estivate in July.

Mark's pictures have been used by Waterbrook Press/Random House, Forbes.com, Chick Magazine, Worldcup Supply, and Birder's World.

Mark holds BSEE and MSEE degrees from the University of Illinois. His 25 years in the semiconductor industry taught him to design marketable products, and give him a good understanding of digital cameras and how to use them to meet your needs.
